Deputy District Attorneys Like Fitzgerald 100%

"We are behind John Fitzgerald one-hundred percent," was the unanimous statement of the entire force of deputy district attorneys when Chief Deputy John P. Fitzgerald this week opened his campaign as the active incumbent for the district attorneyship. Retiring District Attorney Fred L. Thomas added his endorsement to Fitzgerald by stating, "Experience is the most important qualification for a man to become district attorney and Santa Clara County is lucky to have an able, experienced, and honest man like Fitzgerald eligible for the office."

Fitzgerald, according to the district attorney, has taken a part in practically all of the major criminal cases in the county and has a record of experience in both civil and criminal matters that is second to no one in the county. In commenting on the law governing governmental affairs, Thomas said, "Although the district attorney works on major criminal cases, the civil law is the most important part of his work from the taxpayers' standpoint."

"Santa Clara County is a corporation estimated as being worth $350,000,000," he continued, and it is the job of the district attorney to protect the interests of the county through knowledge of the political code and active experience in civil cases. The experience is of great importance and in the ordinary general practice is not studied or used by attorneys.

"The district attorney and his chief deputy are the two men who must take care of almost all of the civil work which includes every type of district created within the county including school districts and also includes work as the legal advisor to the county supervisors and other offices of the county. In other words, the district attorney and his chief deputy are the legal advisors to the taxpayer-owners of our $350,000,000 county corporation."

"No district attorney likes to break in a man and lose him. I don't believe Santa Clara County wishes or can afford to lose the services of a man like Fitzgerald. To illustrate this point, the average term of employment, of the present district attorney's staff, by which I mean the district attorney and the deputies, is fifteen years."

"The average term of employment of the staff is fifteen years because the experience of these men is valuable."

"Clarence Coolidge and myself were chief deputies before becoming district attorney and now Mr. Fitzgerald, who has done a fine job for this county, is running for what I believe is his just reward, the office of district attorney."

The entire staff of deputy district attorneys have taken a similar stand on Fitzgerald's candidacy and chose Fitzgerald from their number to be the active incumbent of the office when it became known the district attorney would retire.

Mr. N. J. Menard, in speaking for the group, said "There is no question that Mr. Fitzgerald is the most outstanding man for district attorney in the entire county. As Mr. Andreuccetti phrased it, Mr. Fitzgerald is an excellent lawyer—that is, he knows his law

Local Man Is Assistant Supt. Berkeley Schools

Adelbert B. Campbell was recently appointed assistant superintendent of the Berkeley city schools by the unanimous vote of the Board of Education upon the recommendation of Superintendent of Schools, Virgil E. Dickenson.

Assistant Superintendent Campbell, was for two years instructor in the manual arts department and six years principal of McKinley high school, and director of adult education in Berkeley. At the time of the appointment several of the directors made very complimentary statements regarding Campbell's qualifications and work. The following is part of the remarks of one member as published in the Berkeley Daily Gazette: "I am in favor of the appointment of Mr. Campbell, realizing his high qualifications. In voting for his selection as assistant superintendent of schools I recommend that his duties shall include those of superintendent of guidance, placement, and personnel, for which Mr. Campbell's past experience as superintendent of adult education and principal of our continuation school especially fits him."

As Adelbert Campbell, better known here as Delbert, is a Campbell boy, son of Mrs. Jessie and the late J. H. Campbell, and had his elementary and high school education here it is a matter of pride to our citizens that he has advanced so far in the educational world.

His education was continued at San Jose, Stanford, and University of California, from which he received his B. S. degree in 1923 and his M. A. in 1933.

He served for a short time in the army during the World War, and then sailed to Hawaii as instructor of mathematics and carpentry in a vocational school at Lahaina for a year, followed by a year of study for his first degree.

He returned to the island as assistant agriculturist on Erva Plantation, Erva, Hawaii. His next position was that of director of rural teacher training in Hawaii Teachers' College, then principal of Wahiawa school, and lastly principal of the Hilo Junior High School, Hilo, Hawaii, 1928-29.

Abandoning teaching for a year he returned to California as investment chancellor with Brookmire Economic Service.

In 1931 he began his work as a member of the Berkeley teaching staff where he has held several positions, leading up to his latest honor.

Last Rites for Charles Binder

Charles Binder passed away on Saturday, August 6, and funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Place funeral parlors Monday afternoon, and interment was in Los Gatos cemetery.

Surviving members of the family are his widow Francis L. Binder, a daughter, Virginia, and a brother, Edward Binder of San Jose.

The William Lloyds are spending some time at the Ainsley cottage at Ben Lomond.

thoroughly, and he is an experienced attorney—meaning advisor. "In criminal work, Mr. Fitzgerald has handled more cases than all of the remaining district attorney candidates put together and his record in criminal cases ranks with the leading district. His experience and knowledge in civil work for Santa Clara County attorneys in the state of California, is invaluable; it would take years of hard work and study for any man to begin to compare with Mr. Fitzgerald in this extremely important job of protecting the interests of this county and the taxpayers who would have to pay for mistakes."

The staff of deputies which has endorsed Mr. Fitzgerald is made up of Herbert S. Bridges, Allan P. Lindsay, A. Andreuccetti, Richard G. Lean, N. J. Henard and special deputy George Stepanovich.

EDITORIAL

There is no more important public office in Santa Clara county than that of district attorney. This fact makes it important that each voter give special consideration in selecting a candidate for this office.

The district attorney acts as the legal adviser of all county officials and the schools of the county. He must handle the legal matters which arise in connection with the transaction of the county's business. And he must prosecute those accused of criminal action in the county. If criminal acts are brought to his attention, he may issue complaints and order the peace officers of the county or his own deputies to make arrests.

The voluntary retirement of Fred L. Thomas from the office of district attorney gives voters of the county the opportunity of making a choice from a field of three candidates. It gives us the opportunity of staffing that office with new men, younger men with the future before them, not bound by traditional ways for conducting the county's business, but fully aware of the fact that they are not only serving the public, but are setting a record of public service for themselves.

On the basis of the right type of public service, preparation for office, and general experience, the Times feels that there is one candidate who fully meets the requirements of the office, and that is Eugene B. Grattan, well known to Morgan Hill residents.—Morgan Hill Times.

Miss Grizzle Hostess At Charming Reception For Mr. and Mrs. Meyers

Miss Wanda Grizzle and Cary Meyers were wed at a beautiful ceremony at 7 o'clock on Thursday evening, Aug. 4, in the lovely Trinity Episcopal church, with the Rev. Mark Rifenbark officiating at the candle-light altar, which was flanked with tall baskets of pink gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Orie Grizzle, was charming in her gown fashioned with a long pointed waist of silk lace and white satin skirt. A long lace bordered veil was arranged with a cap and halo, and her bouquet was a beautiful cluster of gardenias, bouvardia and lilies of the valley, tied with a white satin bow and knotted streamers of white ribbon.

Little Barbara Lee Fowler was a dainty flower girl carrying a basket of rose petals.

Miss Ila Deloris Grizzle, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and wore blue organdy and carried a bouquet of pink tuberous begonia and sweet peas.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Fern and Mary Griswold of San Jose, cousins of the bride. Their gowns were pastel shades and all three attendants had full face veils held by flower clusters. The bridesmaids carried French bouquets centered with exquisite pink tuberous begonias surrounded by white and tinted bouvardia.

The groom's attendant was Thalain L. Grizzle, a brother of the bride, and ushers were John Soares and Albert Porella.

Le Roy V. Brandt, church organist, played the lovely wedding music and marches.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Campbell at the spacious home of the bride's aunt, Miss Winnifred Grizzle, whose gown was a formal Alice blue lace, with jacket.

Assisting in receiving the guests were the bride's mother, Mrs. Josie Grizzle of San Jose, also wearing blue lace, Mrs. Claude Grizzle, another aunt, wearing a formal white silk with floral design, and Mrs. W. G. Grizzle, grandmother of the bride, in black chiffon crepe.

A profusion of exquisite gladioli in shades of pink graced the reception rooms while the decorations in the dining room were in yellows.

A bowl of gorgeous Guineagolds reflected in a mirror centered the long buffet table, laid with a Quaker lace cloth and lighted with yellow tapers. Bowls of zinnias in yellow and orange shades added to the colorful effect in the room.

A side table with a white lace cloth and white tapers held the decorated wedding cake, which the bride cut in the accepted manner.

Miss Edna Statler, who had played a number of piano selections during the reception, caught the bride's bouquet.

Mrs. Edwin Bowling assisted the hostesses and the bride's attendants in serving refreshments.

The bride was educated in San Jose and Santa Clara schools and received flying instructions from Norman Breedon, and was for some time in charge of menu planning at Kress' store in San Jose.

The groom is from Los Angeles where he is connected with the Brown Derby restaurant.

The young people left after the reception for Oakland, the first stop on a honeymoon to be spent at Lake Arrowhead and to include a visit to Boulder dam, the Mojave desert and Catalina island, before taking up their residence in Los Angeles.

Albert Anthes Seeks Support For Coroner

Albert Anthes an independent candidate for Coroner and Public Administrator who has made a study of the duties and responsibilities of this office and who is thoroughly familiar with same makes the following statement and pledge to the voters of Santa Clara County.

As Coroner, I pledge an equal distribution of all cases coming under this office, by rotation to the various undertaking concerns in the county I will follow the methods of distribution used for years by coroners who are not undertakers, in Sacramento, Kern, San Joaquin and other counties in the state, giving each undertaker, in rotation, for a period of from three to six months all the cases coming under the jurisdiction of this office. This system has worked very satisfactorily in the above and other counties in this state and involves no additional cost to the taxpayer, and I pledge to operate the office within a budget both economical, and consistent with the demands necessary to serve the present and increasing population of the county.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby R. Moore (Margaret Wood) daughter, Aug. 2, at the Franklin hospital in San Francisco. The new arrival weighed 8 pounds 6 ounces, and was named Sharon Allgebra.

Dr. and Mrs. James Field and four daughters, who had been on a visit to Alaska, were Tuesday to Thursday visitors with the doctor's brother, Carl Field, and family. They continued their journey from here homeward to McPherson, Kan.

Norman Pratt of Campbell was operated upon a few days ago in Palo Alto, with Dr. Harold Cramer assistant physician. Mrs. Pratt and Mrs. Cramer are sisters. Dr. and Mrs. Cramer are spending the summer in Palo Alto and he has been attending a hospital administration institute at Stanford.

As public administrator, I pledge to maintain a full time office with complete files for each estate, and an economical administration thereof, having in mind the interest of all heirs and of the county in maintaining and preserving the value of each estate coming under my jurisdiction. The files and books will be kept in a public office and open to inspection to the public at all times.

Sanborn Young Urges Support Of A. Beene

The following letter from one who is held in high esteem in this community is a real endorsement of Adron A. Beene, candidate for state senator:

Editor, Campbell Press, and
To my Friends of the 18th Dist.:

After 12 years of serving Santa Clara county it is with deep regret and much appreciation of your loyal support that, because of the pressure of my personal affairs, I feel it necessary to retire from public life.

It is a matter of great pride that you have expressed your approval in three elections, and I have tried to show my gratitude by giving my best efforts to the welfare of Santa Clara county.

In spite of retiring the sense of responsibility remains with me, and it is my earnest desire to see the position of state senator in the hands of a man of ability, integrity and legislative experience who will conscientiously and consistently put the interest of our people above self interest and his own political advancement. In my judgment Adron A. Beene measures up to these specifications and I am convinced that the 18th district will be safe in his care. The position of assemblyman has been exceedingly difficult during recent sessions. I watched his activities at Sacramento and found him to be hard-working, straight-thinking, independent and courageous.

I urgently bespeak your support for the candidacy of Adron A. Beene for state senator for Santa Clara county.

Faithfully yours,
Sanborn Young.

Dowdle Offers Qualifications For Coroner

John E. Dowdle, mortician, is a candidate for coroner and public administrator. He states, that if elected to this office he will conduct it in an honest, efficient, and economical manner, maintaining at all times an experienced staff at no extra cost to the county. He will divide the business fairly and impartially among the lawyers, doctors and undertakers.

Mr. Dowdle's qualifications for this office include experience in the coroner's office in Santa Clara county, extensive work in chemistry and bacteriology, four years in the medical department of the U. S. Navy. He is a college graduate and a licensed embalmer.

Burglars Loot Business Places

Campbell was visited by burglars again Monday night, the Preston garage suffering a second invasion during which batteries, parts of a fog lamp, overlooked in the first raid, and small articles amounting to over $40 were taken. Entrance was gained by breaking open the small door in the large west entrance.

The Jones service station was the other place to suffer from the predatory visitors. Here, a pane of glass was broken, permitting a sufficient opening to be made for entrance. So far as checked, the owners have found a tire, three batteries, cigarettes, a watch and considerable money missing.

The car was apparently parked across the street or on the high school grounds as tracks led that way.

Townsend Edits East Bay Sheet

Jack Townsend, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Townsend, last week entered upon his duties as editor of The Reporter of San Leandro. He will be responsible for all material for the publication except the woman's page, which the owner will edit herself.

Jack graduated from the University of Oregon in June, where he had majored in journalism, and is greatly pleased to have secured such a fine position.

Dr. Wilson Talks At Kiwanis Club

Dr. Doxey Wilson, superintendent of the county hospital, explained features of the financial department of that institution and its operation to the Kiwanis club Tuesday.

Costs were $449,000, or approximately $3 per day per patient. Dr. Merrill presided, presenting the speaker to his fellow members.

Louis Gray of Mountain View, candidate for sheriff, was a "make-up attendance" visitor.

Next week the club will observe the August "ladies' night," when Cyril Collett will be chairman, showing pictures of India where he spent his youth with his father, the Reverend Collett, who was in the mission field, and who will talk about that country.

Smith-Simond Nuptials Aug. 6

Of interest to many in Campbell, especially residents of the Cambrian district, is the account of the wedding of Charles Simonds and Miss Marie Smith which appeared in Sunday's Mercury-Herald:

"At a delightfully informal wedding on Saturday afternoon, Miss Marie Smith and Charles Simonds were united in marriage by the Rev. E. E. Ward, the wedding taking place in the new First Congregational church at Redwood City. The church was beautifully decorated with mid-summer flowers and gleaming white tapers.

The bride wore a fall suit of teal blue with a corsage of white begonias and lilies of the valley. Mrs. R. S. Mortensen, who motored down from Sacramento for the occasion, attended the bride. Mr. Simonds was attended by his brother, William Simonds.

Following the ceremony, the bridal group was entertained at a dinner party at San Mateo.

Mrs. Simonds is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Smith of this city. She was educated in the San Jose schools and graduated this June from San Jose State college. On the campus the bride was an active member of Beta Gamma Chi society. She has been entertained at several pre-nuptial parties by her college friends.

"Mr. Simonds is the eldest son of Mrs. B. C. Gale, also of this city. He attended both San Jose State college and Stanford university and is now the principal of the Cambrian grammar school. His fraternity is Phi Chi.

"The happy couple is planning a honeymoon trip of several weeks which will take them over the Redwood highway and through the northern part of the state."

They will make their home in Campbell the coming school year, occupying the Gilbert Newcomb house on North Second street, where Mr. and Mrs. John P. Duncan are now living.

Local Candidates To Attend Dinner

Frank Coupland, constable of Campbell township, and Harry D. Evans, candidate for that office, with Mrs. Evans, will be "among those present" at the candidates' dinner to be held at Pioneer hall, 148 North Third street, San Jose, next Tuesday evening, Aug. 16, at 6:30 o'clock.

The affair is being given by the Sewing Club auxiliary of the California Pioneers of Santa Clara county. Invitations have been issued to all candidates for political offices, local, county and state. Their families, friends and the general public are cordially invited to attend, if reservations are made early.

The price of the dinner (an old-fashioned, home-cooked meal), will be a "penny-an-inch" waist measure, for all who attend.

There will be music but no speech-making. The affair is strictly informal and a jolly, friendly evening is promised and a large crowd is anticipated.

Mrs. J. J. O'Brien is general chairman of the event.

Reservations may be made by telephoning Ballard 299 or Ballard 2168R not later than Saturday, the 13th.

NEW YORK.—England pioneered the businessman-diplomat—shrewdly and effectively, it would seem. Many of her best fixers and negotiators throughout the world have been men who had a personal stake in the outcome of their operations. They were not disinterested, perhaps, but no more were the traditional diplomats who knew protocol, perhaps, but nothing about oil.

Best Fixers Have Stake In Deals
America followed with Norman H. Davis, a financier who became an effective European swing man under five presidents, and then came Spruille Braden, engineer and industrialist who was our ambassador-at-large in Latin America until he became minister to Colombia last April.

President Roosevelt, agreeing to act as an arbitrator in the Chaco dispute, picks Mr. Braden to represent him. In his own private industrial diplomacy throughout South America, the husky and gregarious Mr. Braden has proved himself an excellent pacifier and trouble-shooter.

He knows the score in oil, copper, rubber, minerals, hides and what not, and this materialized and particularized diplomacy has made him useful in diplomatic representations at various South American conferences. He has been working on the Chaco settlement for the last three years.

In his youth, he did a short turn in the mines near Elkhorn, Mont., his native town, and then went to Yale and became a mining engineer.

He was a second-string halfback at Yale, but a first string engineer and promoter from the start, electrifying Chile for Westinghouse, organizing the Bolivia-Argentina Exploration corporation, branching out widely in South American development and finance. He desperately wanted to be minister to Chile, but was consoled with Colombia.

He is forty-four years old, remembered in New York as the fastest and hardest-working handball player around Jack O'Brien's gymnasium, in which he combated a tendency to plumpness, creeping up on him a bit in late years.

He was married in 1915 to the beautiful and socially eminent Senorita Maria Humeres del Solar of Chile. They have three daughters and two sons. Their New York residence is the former George W. Perkins estate at Riverdale-on-the-Hudson.

CARL J. HAMBRO, burly president of the Norwegian parliament, is in America for a lecture tour. There is an interesting cut-back in his career.

Predicted Collapse Of League
At Geneva, in 1927, he staged a spectacular debate with Austen Chamberlain, in which, speaking for the small states, he vehemently insisted that the league must find a way to restrain strong aggressors, or else find itself impotent and discredited in a few years.

With equal vehemence, Mr. Chamberlain proclaimed the trustworthiness of the strong states and their humanitarian aims. Warning Mr. Hambro against overt restraints by the league, he said, "Along that road lies danger."

Mr. Hambro was the most distinguished recruit of the Oxford group movement in 1935, and has since been a leader of the movement in Norway.

Returning from a luncheon attended by Dr. Frank Buchman, founder of the movement, in Geneva, he told of the mystic exaltation of the company and later announced his adherence to the group.

Although a conservative, Mr. Hambro is the president of the Labor party of Norway. For many years, he has been leading the fight of the smaller nations in the league. Arriving in New York, he remarks dryly that Norway is old-fashioned—she has a surplus in her budget.

Marriage Problem in Africa
Christian denominations have sprung up so rapidly among the natives of South Africa that the government has had to step in and separate those qualified to have marriage ceremonies performed. There are more than 500 "all-Bantu" Christian denominations in the country, giving South Africa the largest number of religions in the world. The government has announced in Pretoria that it will issue an "approved list" of churches having clergymen able to keep a marriage register and therefore entitled to unite couples.

Field of Corn Waves in City Street

Three Chicago youngsters with a taste for truck gardening "plowed" and cultivated a tiny patch of ground near the curbstone of their residential street and soon had a thriving field of corn. Flood of Pennies for China

Putting her heart and soul into a miniature relief campaign all her own, Carolyn Wong, six years old, collected 4,000 pennies from fellow Chinese school children with which she surprised officials of the United Council for Civilian Relief in China. The money will be added to funds for relief of sufferers of the Japanese invasion.

TODAY'S BOOK

Bought Island To Save Birds From Mankind

By ELIZABETH C. JAMES

WHEN memory runs free to seek the treasures among books, it always comes to rest upon the tales by Dr. Axel Munthe. "The Story of San Michele" is the life story of a man you should know.

Nothing in the book is more appealing than the author's love of animals. His knowledge of the ways of birds, monkeys, dogs, and wild animals makes the book almost an animal story. Resentment against confining animals in cages led him to state that in a zoo, the monkeys are on the outside, looking in. Hunting as a sport was nauseous to Dr. Munthe, and he wrote: "The time will come when the mere pleasure of killing will die out in man. As long as it is there, man has no claim to call himself civilized, he is a mere barbarian, a missing link between his wild ancestors who slew each other with stone axes for a piece of raw flesh and the man of the future."

This attitude was by no means an assumed front: Dr. Munthe bought the Isle of Capri in the Bay of Naples because it was the only way

"LISTENED" TO LIFE

In writing a preface to the American edition of "The Story of San Michele," Dr. Munthe interpreted his own book. He comments on the reviewers who had already published analyses of his book and presents reasons why he disagrees with some of their comments. His book had been called The Memoirs of a Doctor and The Autobiography of Dr. Munthe. Both of the comments appear inaccurate to him, for his purpose was to present life, omitting himself as much as possible. He hoped to listen to the Voice of Life and to record what he heard.

that he could stop the cruel and wholesale slaying of birds there. The Italian fishermen had a practice of catching a few of these birds and of blinding them, then fastening them to act as decoys for the other birds. Their plaintive cries caused the other birds to come to see what could be their plight and they in turn were caught in nets by the thousands. These multitudes of birds were sold to be worn alive on chains on gala days.

Book Is Vivid.

Dr. Munthe appealed to the government to stop this, but to no avail. So he bought the island. At the end of his book, the old doctor pictures his trial in Heaven and the birds plead for him before the sternness of Moses!

A critic has said that Dr. Munthe, like Petrarch and Chaucer, has filled his book so full of narrative and incident, that short story writers could use it for endless sources of ideas. This is true. There are narratives connected with medical study in France and later with his association with Pasteur and Charcot; there are stories of vacations to Norway and Lapland, and down to Italy; there are human interest stories dealing with the lives of his friends and patients.

Another of his medical stories is that of the mixed coffins. When Dr. Munthe was practicing medicine in Paris, he had as a patient a young man from Norway who had an incurable illness. At the death of the boy, the family asked Dr. Munthe to escort the body to Norway personally. In the freight car where he was required by law to travel with a coffin, he met another man who was escorting to the coast the body of a Russian general. Both men were to take boats at the coast, one for Norway, the other for Russia.

Mixed Funerals.

In Norway Dr. Munthe met the family and learned of their plan to open the coffin. Privately he opened it himself, to see about the embalming. What he saw caused him to reel backward and to turn white. The black bushy beard of the Russian general greeted him. Dr. Munthe persuaded the mother not to see her son. And to this day, the Russian general lies in Norway and the Norwegian boy lies in Russia.

His personal acquaintance with Death took a different turn after Dr. Munthe had practiced medicine for some years. At first Death was a personal enemy to be fought by the bed of one patient; later Death became a force controlling the destiny of mankind. For Dr. Munthe was a volunteer to the plague of Naples, when people died a thousand a day of cholera.

For readers who like to meet a man who takes life zestfully, Dr. Munthe is recommended. Evidently others have the same opinion, for the copy of "The Story of San Michele" belonging to this writer is from the sixty-third edition.

Fresh Peach Ice Cream

(Automatic refrigerator)
1 cup fresh peach pulp
4 tablespoons sugar
Dash of salt
2 drops almond extract
1 cup milk
½ package (scant ½ cup) unflavored ice cream powder
1 cup cream, whipped

Mix peach, sugar, salt, and almond. Add milk very gradually to ice cream powder, stirring until dissolved. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for coldest freezing temperature. Stir when frozen ¼ inch thick on sides and twice more at 20-minute intervals, adding peach pulp during second stirring. Freezing time: about 3 hours. Makes about 1 quart ice cream.

Politeness sometimes comes hard. Be well drilled in it.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Ed Dana and his sons came home to dinner and it was a merry meal. Once the door-bell rang and Gim Jung said mysteriously, "Missie Dana, you come!" and Mrs. Dana hurried to the reception-hall, her heart slipping in her breast, to find a high school youth in a soiled sweat-shirt asking for young Bill. He was embarrassed by the warmth of her greeting.

After their always formal coffee in the drawing-room the family separated, the older sons off on their own occasions, the youngest reluctantly to his books, the husband to a directors' meeting at the San Jose Chamber of Commerce, and the mother went upstairs with Duncan and Sarah Lynn.

Duncan read a solid biography aloud in his pleasantly modulated, cultured voice and Sarah Lynn leaned back in her chair, her hands loosely clasped in her lap, her eyes half closed. The pretty room was quiet and warmly and softly lit: the canaries' cages were covered with gay chintz and the Persian kittens were asleep in their basket in endearing attitudes. Framed photographs of plump babies looked down from the walls in dewy innocence, and Mrs. Dana began to have a sense of safety, of sanctuary so complete that she started in on her rhythmic breathing again.

Then the door opened without a preliminary knock and Miss Pennington walked in. The harsh color had drained out of her hard, round cheeks and her pale eyes appeared to protrude farther than ever. She stood still in the middle of the room.

"Sarah Lynn," she said abruptly. "Gunnar Thorwald is here."

Sarah Lynn gave a muffled cry, her clenched hands at her mouth.

"Hush, Miss Pennington!" her employer said sharply. "I forbid you to—"

The governess went steadily on. "Sarah Lynn, he has come back for you."

Duncan was on his feet. "Miss Pennington, this makes no difference to Sarah Lynn now!"

"Listen to me, Sarah Lynn! He came back, thinking you were still helpless, that you would never walk again. He came to take you away with him, or to stay with you forever."

"This means less than nothing to you, at this late date, darling," the mother said. "Remember, he went away at the moment when your condition seemed most hopeless."

"Because you turned from him in horror," Miss Pennington said quickly. "You know that you deliberately sent him away."

Sarah Lynn was out of her chair, wide-eyed, shaking. "Yes—because I knew how he despised weakness! Because I didn't want to spoil his life—because I wanted him to be free!"

Duncan stepped close and put a protecting arm about her. "That's all over, Sarah Lynn. Nothing matters now except ourselves, and we're going to be married in three days!"

"Oh Penny!" Sarah Lynn turned to her.

She nodded. "We had to tell him. We told him you were well again, and that you were to marry Mr. Duncan. If you could have seen his look—"

"Hush!" Mrs. Dana said violently, her beautiful face darkly crimson. The gentle walls, so lately a sanctuary, now looked down on a battlefield. "Leave the room! Do you hear me, Miss Pennington?" The first bitter and truculent tones the pretty place had ever heard. "Leave the room and leave my house!"

The governess turned a stricken look to her. "I hear, Mrs. Dana, and I understand." If in that instant she visioned the inconvenient cottage of her brother, the curate, the sharp-tongued sister-in-law, it failed to give her pause. "I will go at once. But first"—she addressed herself to Sarah Lynn—"I must tell you this. He is going away forever; he is going away forever."

The blood came into Sarah Lynn's face and into her heart; she could feel the exquisite agony of coming alive again. She heard her own voice vaguely, as if from a distance, saying stupid and futile things to her mother and Duncan Van Doren about being sorry. Then she was running. She ran down the hall and down the stairs and out of the house, and someone ran beside her, breathing hard, holding her hand. She knew it must be the old governess but she did not turn her head to look. There were dim shapes in the dark garden, figures converging upon her, figures without faces, familiar voices in unfamiliar words, Lightning, the greyhound leaping and bounding in beautiful joy.

"Come! The car's waiting!" someone said.

"I've packed a bag for you! Hurry!" said another.

There was the drumming of wings in the sky. Sarah Lynn flung her head back until it hung between her shoulder-blades to watch one star detach itself from its fellows and move steadily away.

"Oh, Gunnar, wait for me!" she gave a desolate cry.

"That isn't Gunnar, goose!" Sally Ann said raggedly. "But we'll take you to him! Come along!"

They were hurrying her down the driveway, one on each side of her, another pattering behind.

Miss Pennington's voice said, "Bless you!" and then there were no footsteps following. Sarah Lynn heard her saying, "Oh, Mr. Duncan, I'm so truly sorry, but it's no use, sir! I tell you, it's no use!"

Mary Dana Webster flung words back over her shoulder, kind words but final, breathless with her haste, and there was Duncan's voice, bitter and proud and hurt, and then silence.

"Here we are! Uncle Lynn's car—he's here! Get in, Sarah Lynn!"

Her Uncle Lynn's hand, his arm about her; excited voices, kind, concerned, triumphant; a cloak car, carrying the bag, shaking her hand, patting her shoulder, wishing her luck. Then there were the good-bys, too hurried to be heard. The women kissed her and Mary Dana Webster wept happily. Sally Ann said, "I'm sailing soon, too, Sarah Lynn. Write me—Paris!"

Sarah Lynn tried to say something to her Uncle Lynn, who had made this hour; who, sitting still in his chair for more than half his lifetime, was the one to give her wings. "Uncle Lynn, Uncle Lynn!"

Vance Le Roy took her elbow in a hard grip and walked her to Jordan's plane, lifting his voice over the din to say this was a great break, to wish her Happy Landings.

They helped her into the cabin and handed in her bag and arranged the robes so she could pull them over her.

"Hi! Make it snappy! Here they come!" a mechanic called.

Old Pete said, sniffing loudly, "Well, God love you, Ladybug!"

tude of patience and submission and tolerance to this blaze of joy. Panic overwhelmed her. She was afraid to look. Gunnar would not be there; it would be Conrad Jordan or Vance Le Roy; she had lived so long with renunciation that happiness seemed an impossible phantom.

But at last she had courage enough to drop the corner of the robe she was holding, and she saw him. Very cautiously and lightly she lifted herself to a seat, her eyes still on him, assured and comforted, and fears fell away forever toward the dark earth far below. She thought of her mother with an uprush of remorseful tenderness, of poor, defeated Duncan, of old Penny, fighting like a lioness for her cub; she remembered her Great-grandmother's flight—"I don't want to go down, Sairy Lynn! I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

Now she would stand and take the brief steps which separated her from her lover; she would put her

"I want to keep on going up and up and up."

wrapped round her, a hat pulled down on her head, things of no importance whatever.

"Gunnar?" she said as she had said that day in the meadow after coming down in the parachute. "I want Gunnar."

"At the field, lambie. He's with Conrad Jordan now, and he's flying to Los Angeles tonight. He thinks Conrad's going with him, but he isn't. You are, Sarah Lynn!" Mary Dana Webster was crying. "You are!"

"Yes," she said contentedly. "When will I see him?"

"At the field. But we'll be there first. I told Conrad to give us a good margin of time," Lynn Dana told her.

Sarah Lynn said suddenly, "Penny! Didn't Penny come? I didn't say good-by to Penny!"

"Don't you worry about Penny!" her cousin said robustly. "I'll take care of Penny!"

"I'll bring her over to you, by and by, if you like," Sally Ann promised. "And I'll bring Lightning, too."

They were all promising things: they would see her mother, they would see her father, they would talk to Duncan, they would take care of old Penny; there was absolutely nothing for her to worry about.

But the numbness was going out of Sarah Lynn's head and heart, and she knew how silly she was requiring long devotion; behind her was shock and grief and wounded pride, and she was wrung with remorse, but before her was Gunnar, and she had no choice.

"Gunnar?" she said again. "When—"

"Almost there, Sarah Lynn!"

Then they were at the field, and Vance Le Roy was handing her out of the car, grinning, and the mechanics were crowding up, and Old Pete was gulping and blowing his nose.

"Well, God love you, Ladybug! You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Where is Gunnar?"

"Not here yet, Miss, nor Mr. Jordan, but the ship's warmed up for 'em. Well, now, will you be stowing away again?"

Sarah Lynn laughed aloud. "Yes! I'll stow away, Pete! Help me!" That was the perfect way. Then she would not have to see him first before them all; their first moment would be their own.

The drama of it caught their fancy. They were all laughing, skurrying about, bringing robes from the Sarah Lynn flattened herself and covered her head, and it was a comfort to hide, to be still, after the hubbub of the last hour. She was dizzy and faint and confused with the breathless excitement, the high emotional strain, after long months with blooming houseplants and trilling canaries and purring kittens; with coming to life again.

She could see nothing, but sounds and smells reached her, and she could imagine the progress of the plan—someone of the conspirators catching Conrad Jordan's eye and drawing him aside, Conrad Jordan making an excuse to Gunnar for not flying south with him, and Gunnar climbing into the ship alone. She could feel the faint jar when he took his seat and she cuddled closer under her stifling covers.

Then they were taxiing down the field—the familiar feel of it, bumping along the earth they were about to spurn—and presently they were rising and rising, turning, circling, climbing, banking, climbing high and higher.

The moment had arrived now, to lift the prisoning robes and look at Gunnar, but she delayed. It had been too much—the suddenness, the lightning transition from the lassitude hand on his shoulder and speak to him, just as she had done all those ages ago on the night of Ardine's prank hatched in the Stewed Prune. But this time he would not scorn her. He would make a place for her beside him and she would be always beside him, and their cold cheeks would touch, and he would turn his head and kiss her; the queer, dark Dana girl, the Ladybug, flying away in the night.

As she had delayed to look at him through terror that he might not be there, so now she dallied with the rapture of the impending moment, her heart hammering, until her gaze which had not left him for an instant began to evaluate the change she saw. It was Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who held the stick, but it might well have been another, for the proud carriage of the head was missing, the stern set of the squared shoulders, the hard certainty, the harsh young arrogance were gone. His chin was on his breast, and he sat slumped in his seat, and in every lean line was a hurt so deep, so lonely, so intolerable that there were quick tears of tenderness in her eyes as she rose and went forward to comfort him.

(THE END.)

Ocean's Age Put at Half Billion Years; Experts Cite Saltiness as a Time Gauge

How old is the earth? There are about forty ways of arriving at the answer. For the most part the answers do not agree, observes a writer in the New York Times.

The best method of estimating the earth's age seems to be that of measuring the radioactivity of rocks. They were with us when a solid crust was formed. The rate at which they send forth energy can be determined. With that to guide them, geophysicists have decided that the earth is at least two billion years old.

Before this radioactive method was developed geologists relied in part on the saltiness of the ocean to appraise the earth's age. Salt was washed out of rocks and carried to sea by rivers, ran the argument. Measure the annual increase in saltiness and it is easy enough to find how old the oceans are—a step in discovering the age of the earth.

In this way the geologists decided that the oceans must be about a hundred million years old. The answer was patently wrong, because fossil salt-water fish have been found which are much older. Forced to revise their estimates, the measurers of the ocean's saltiness raised their figures to 350,000,000 years after making new chemical analyses. But even this was too low.

Drs. A. C. Spencer and K. I. Murata of the United States Geological survey have attacked this problem anew. They find that some salt is removed by the silt that is carried down to the sea and that the salt in the silt is not easily dissolved. Hence saltiness is not a true indication of the ocean's age. Making the proper allowance, they arrive at a new figure for the age of the ocean. It is 500,000,000 to 700,000,000 years. Geophysicists who use the radioactivity of rocks as their clock will regard this revision as still too low.

A Coat of Arms

A coat of arms is a garment of light material worn over the armor in the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries, often charged with the heraldic bearings of the wearer. A tabard or surcoat embroidered with armorial bearings.

A Play Outfit; a Basic Dress

DO YOU need something new to dawdle in or to dress up in? Here are two new designs, one for play and one for afternoon, that are so smart you really should have both. It costs so little, in time and trouble, to make them for yourself, with these simple designs that even beginners can follow with no difficulty. And of expensive models this coming season. Also in the Victorian sleeves, high at the shoulders and fitted to the arm below. The straight panel in the back, the gathers at the waistline in front, give you a lovely figure-line. Although it's so distinguished looking and subtly detailed, this dress is easy to make. Just six steps in the detailed sew chart. Make it now of silk crepe, linen or georgette. Later in sheer wool, satin or velvet.

The Patterns.

1557 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 5½ yards of 35-inch material. 10 yards of ricrac braid to trim.

1482 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material with long sleeves; 4¼ yards of 39-inch material for short sleeves.

Success in Sewing.

Success in sewing, like in any other field, depends upon how you approach the task in hand. To help you turn out clothes professional looking in every detail, we have a book which plainly sets forth the simple rules of home dressmaking. The beginner will find every step in making a dress clearly outlined and illustrated within its covers. For the experienced sewer there are many helpful hints and suggestions for sewing short cuts. course you can splurge on some really luxury fabrics, when you sew your own.

Play Suit and Sports Frock.

This new design gives you both! The play suit has beautifully cut shorts and a nice bodice top with the sunniest kind of sunback. The frock is created merely by fastening that straight skirt around you, and the bolero goes with both! Notice how cleverly the ricrac braid is used to simulate a square yoke in the front. The smartest thing for this design is linen in a dusty pastel shade; calico, percale and pique are good, too. Be sure to trim it with ricrac.

Dress With Bodice Detailing.

THEY VOTE—WE TOTE

"California is rapidly becoming the dumping ground for the poor of the nation, and something has to be done about it!"

Thus bluntly assessing a critical situation, the California Citizens' Association has embarked upon a concerted state-wide drive to hammer home a reasonable and urgent demand—that Federal relief agencies should provide for indigent labor at its points of origin!

At the rate of 7000 a month, refugees have been, and are, streaming in to this state from the drought areas. Our relief standards are high, our pensions are tempting, and California is still a charmed word.

That is flattering, but not comforting, as it becomes more apparent that the 221,000 who have entered our State in the last 30 months may actually hold the balance of power in the coming primary and general elections.

The opportunity to fulfill resident requirements and enjoy the vote is no idle privilege in a state with liberal bounties. It is a pass-key to El Dorado for the jobless, but it is the other Californians who will foot the bill for measures leading to costly expenditures. Lowering the bars on the present required two-thirds vote, such a proposal as the Garrison Bond Act would force municipalities into the utilities business by a bare majority vote, and open wide gates to political control by the jobless indigent. If they vote the load, we must tote it.

In view of current efforts to establish migrant refugees here, supported by Federal jobs, citizens have a right to demand, "If the Federal government can support them in California, why not in their home state?"

ARBITRATE FIRST

With the finding that ninety per cent of all industrial disputes in the last year have ended around the conference table, labor research groups have today confronted America with the demand, "Arbitrate first!"

If ninety out of one-hundred strikes traverse a rocky road marked by violence, public disfavor, wage losses, and hardships on communities, only to end ultimately in peaceful arbitration, why waste time making these hazardous detours? Why not try the round table parley FIRST and avoid the detours?

The welcome answer is that efforts are being concentrated in California and other states to prepare a guidebook of the most direct high-road to peace.

If the contests between Labor and employers have been fierce and heated, marked by hostility and loud cries of "Poul!", we, the public, are in part to blame. We have been too content to sit by and wait until, at long last, the arbitrator steps in. If the charges of "Unfair!" hurled by each disputant have been justified, there is small cause for surprise. How can there be genuine fair play when nobody knows the rules or the penalties of the game—until the contest is three-fourths over! Then the arbitrator steps in tardily, announces the rules, imposes the penalties, and decides the results.

Rules and rights, penalties and awards, put down in writing, and upheld by law—these are the means by which California seeks to provide a rulebook of fair play and square dealing. What more effective response can we make to the reasonable demand, "Arbitrate first!"

EASY MONEY

Easy money has only one thing the matter with it. It always comes the hard way. But tell that to the optimists who wager hundreds of millions yearly on the ponies! Or to the fortune-hunters, inspired—and sometimes victimized by rosy hopes, who seek to stake their claims in the estates of the departed wealthy.

Even where the claims are legitimate, easy money still comes the hard way.

Just the other day in a California court, two more claimants to the fortune of Joseph Horwitz made their appearance. Horwitz assertedly made a fabulous sum in California's roaring 'fifties. Following his death at the turn of the century, a stream of claimants began turning up which has not yet ended. But one catch still remains.

Not a cent of the reputed fortune has ever been found!

SERVICE WITH SAVINGS

"The best man for the best job!"

In that maxim lies the heart of civil service reform. A gathering of leading commercial and trade executives, meeting in Palo Alto last week, also found in it the watchwords of the hour—efficiency and economy in government.

On the basis of studies made in sixty communities of seven Western states, including California, a healthy suspicion was confirmed. Trained and qualified men in government means government run at a saving, a damper on patronage, a premium on efficiency.

This conclusion carries a challenge to every citizen in a period when rapidly multiplying—government functions—and functionaries!—have left nearly 40 per cent of Federal, and over 60 per cent of State, personnel outside civil service. But if that challenge is answered by public support, it will, in the words of Dr. Walter Scott Franklin, Santa Barbara farmer and candidate for the lieutenant governorship, "extend to youth the economy in government." This program, a merit system guaranteeing permanent careers regardless of party affiliations, is the hallmark of progressive government.

It has been rightly said that the people can have as bad a government as they will stand for, but they may have as good a government as they will work for. Let's work for better government!

WHERE'S A BRIDE?

Love not only makes the world go round. It can also make a shy Pennsylvanian like Dale N. Kendall go round the world or a large part of it.

He wanted a bride but being bashful, found American girls "to modern in a flashy sort of way." So he set out to see what Europe had to offer, pedaling his way via bicycle across England and the Continent.

At the end of his 2,000 mile quest, the youth finds himself wiser but brideless. His findings worked out like this:

Italy—"The dark-eyed beauties seem a bit on the heavy side, and they age too early."

Holland—"They all looked very much alike to me."

England—"They were very nice, but," said the once-shy youth, "I thought they seemed rather reserved." Travel, it seems, can be broadening, even on a bicycle!

CONQUEST

The Hawaii Clipper will no longer wing its way over more than one-third of the earth's circumference, linking California with China's coast, but the new sky routes its sister ships pioneered will remain.

These new caravan routes of the sky spanning the Pacific are only in their infancy.

The records held by the clippers in this trans-oceanic service are one of the best proofs we have that tomorrow will bring even greater development on these skyways. Till the hour when the Hawaii Clipper sent out its last "All's well" message, to vanish one minute later, the fleet-winged ships had flown 2,000,000 miles in regular scheduled operations without a mishap!

The loss of the Hawaii Clipper and her passengers and crew is a tragic milestone in the history of trans-Pacific aviation, but it is no epitaph. Man's conquest of space has only begun.

REDS IN THE RED

Ominous clashes with the Japanese are not the least of Soviet Russia's worries today.

In the 21st year of that country's socialist regime, its two leading newspapers find all far from well. In a brutally frank self-analysis the other day, they proceeded to lash their worst domestic enemy, the confused, messed-up state of retailing, Soviet style. They found store windows dirty and dusty, clerks rude and careless, shelves empty or piled with goods nobody asked for. Throughout the country, they discovered stores which do not stock sugar, matches, or flour, and even in the biggest retail units last week it was impossible to find summer fabrics, shoes, and sports goods. In the industrial city of Rostov, boasting a population of over half a million, you couldn't buy a child's rubber doll!

That may be the promised land. But compare its unkempt, poorly stocked shops with our modern, clean, fully stocked stores. Judging them by the marvels of scientific distribution achieved by our centralized retail outlets and the resultant millions in savings they pass on to consumers, confirms one fact. We have a pretty fair brand of Utopia here at home!

C. T. Fawcett enjoyed a call Sunday from a nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamb of Oakland.

The G. F. Carpenter family residents of Apricot Avenue were victims of minor cuts and bruises in an auto accident which occurred Sunday evening near the entrance to Stanford University. They were given emergency attention at the nearby Palo Alto hospital.

Warren McKenzie came down from Berkeley Sunday and on his return Monday was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. H. Campbell who will remain for sometime while Mrs. McKenzie undergoes a serious operation.

The A. N. Lantz family who had been vacationing in Yosemite Park returned home Monday. They report the park as a densely populated resort.

In speaking before a group of friends and supporters here this week, Jerry M. O'Brien, coroner and public administrator candidate stated that only under his plan of having a deputy coroner in central locations can Santa Clara county best be served and protected.

"As you probably know, the present provision for three coroners' deputies was made when Santa Clara county had but one-third of its present population," O'Brien said, "and I am sure the county board of supervisors will see the advisability of both saving expense, and at the same time, avoiding delays to distressed families under this plan."

Through the county board of supervisors O'Brien plans to have deputy coroners appointed in Los Gatos, Palo Alto, Morgan Hill, Gilroy, Mt. View and Sunnysvale.

- 2 To keep this county free of any crime menace by continuing my fight against crime and criminals.
- 3 To devote my entire time to a faithful, fearless and independent performance of every duty of District Attorney.

READ THIS RECORD

1 Although every other county in California has had costly litigation suits brought against them, the record of Santa Clara County in civil matters is clear of any such costly proceedings. This record stands in all civil matters which the district attorney's office must advise upon and includes counsel to almost every county office, board and district.

2 Following is a table showing the percentage of acquittals of all cases charged with felonies, the major criminal cases in district attorneys' offices throughout the state and prosecuted by the district attorneys' offices. The records are inclusive from June, 1928 (as reported by the Attorney General of the State of California in his reports to the Governor every two years) and include every county of over 140,000 population in California.

The above impartially compiled information proves conclusively that fewer people go free for crimes in Santa Clara County than in any other county in the State of California.

In comment, Mr. Fitzgerald said: "Fortunately, there is no great crime menace in Santa Clara County. The citizens of this county on the whole are honest and those who do try their hands at crime do so at a great risk of conviction. The record of criminal prosecution by this office speaks for itself and I can honestly say that my record of prosecutions is comparable."

"Santa Clara County, like almost every section of the United States, suffered a higher number of crimes as a result of the depression and particularly between 1930 and 1932. However, the reports of the District Attorneys in California shows that the increase of crime in Santa Clara County was not as heavy as generally found. As the Attorney General's report shows, fewer people got away from their penalties in this county when the number of actual cases was highest."

L. Ben Howard and family moved recently from rented property on Rincon avenue to their new home in the Hedegard tract west of the football field, where a new road was opened. Mr. Howard is a teacher of history in the San Jose high school.

The card party held yesterday in the attractive grounds of the L. J. Carboni home was a very pleasant affair. Sponsored by Pundita Circle, the proceeds are used for charitable purposes, and the party has become an annual event, enjoyed by members and friends as an opportunity to meet when clubs are not meeting and social gatherings are limited.

Mrs. Julius Bachman was hostess to members of her bridge club at her home Thursday evening. Present to enjoy the card playing and social time were Mrs. Percy Dunlap, Mrs. Horace Lea, Mrs. Lillian Ohlen, Mrs. Richard Knappen, Mrs. Albert West, Mrs. Herbert Gardner, and Mrs. Henry Gullick.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE

We folks here at the Garden Chapel believe that funeral directing is more than a business. It is rather a ministry.

At no time do dignity and tenderness mean more than during the hour of sorrow. It is our part to minister with a quiet efficiency that thinks of everything.

Five Hurricanes May Be Expected Yearly In Southeast States

WASHINGTON.—An average of five hurricanes a year sweep from their birthplace in the doldrums of the tropical Atlantic toward the southeastern and gulf states, but usually only one of this number is severely destructive.

The most destructive known was that which caused the Galveston disaster in 1900. Even then, most of the 6,000 lives lost were taken by a tidal wave which rushed upon the stricken city after the hurricane had left it helpless. Since that time Miami and Palm Beach have felt the effect of the West Indian hurricane and millions have been lost in property damage but comparatively few lives taken.

The hurricane of the western hemisphere is the same as the typhoon of the eastern hemisphere. A majority of both begin in practically the same way in a calm region of hot, humid atmosphere, one in mid-Atlantic and the other in mid-Pacific. Heated air rises through cooler and heavier layers and sets up the initial whirl, it is thought. The storm then moves off and gathers volume as it goes.

High Velocities Reached.
It is an extensive disturbance often hundreds of miles in diameter and has a dead area of practically no wind at its center, but in the whirl enormous velocities are reached. A velocity of 123 miles an hour was recorded during a hurricane at Miami, September 18, 1926. The hurricane travels for about 10 or 15 miles an hour over most of its course. It holds to the same course for days, but this is hard to predict because reports are usually meager as the hurricane comes from an unfrequented part of the ocean. It was a hurricane that brought the heaviest 24-hour rainfall ever recorded in the United States. This was at Taylor, Texas, September 9-10, 1921, where a fall of 23.11 inches of water occurred.

Hurricanes and typhoons are nature's most powerful storms. Such a storm will expend in a day's time enough energy to run all the power plants of the earth for several years. This enormous power comes largely from the latent heat of condensation of the heavy rainfall which always accompanies the storm, scientists now believe. The necessary water vapor is thought to be supplied by winds which blow continually to the hurricane.

In the northern hemisphere, because of the earth's rotation, a hurricane or typhoon spins in a counter-clockwise direction, but in the southern hemisphere it turns clockwise.

Our Particular Galaxy Is Not So Thin as It Seems

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The galaxy of stars containing the earth and the sun, often thought of as a flat disk in space, is not as thin as it may seem.

It would take light at least 100,000 years to cross the galaxy at its thickest part even though light travels at approximately 186,000 miles a second, said Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard College observatory, at the meeting of the American Association of Variable Star Observers, held at Brown university's Ladd observatory.

A survey of 2,300 Cepheid variable stars of the cluster type, having periods of less than a day, made possible the new estimate of the shape of the galaxy.

Our galaxy actually is surrounded by a thinly-populated spherical aura or halo of stars, Doctor Shapley added. In this it resembles the Andromeda nebula, one of the nearest of the spiral nebulae.

The isolated star most remote from the plane of the Milky Way, known as BE Virginis, is distant 130,000 light years.

Java Bird Life Suffers From Beliefs of Natives

BANDOENG, JAVA.—Netherlands authorities in Java, trying to carry out an admirably planned conservation program, have their troubles because of many native beliefs and habits.

The Malays believe that children can acquire the characteristics of birds by eating them. So they feed king-crows and shrikes to infants, to make them lively and communicative. Dull, lazy children are compelled to eat fan-tailed flycatchers, which are very active, industrious birds.

A great deal of destruction of bird life is wrought through the Malay fondness for pets. Children are given young storks, bulbuls, pigeons and starlings to play with—naturally, with ultimately fatal results to the birds.

Suppressed Anger Is Cause of Malignant High Blood Pressure

By JANE STAFFORD
SAN FRANCISCO.—If you get mad at the boss and tell him so, you will probably lose your job; but if you stay mad at him for years without boiling over at him, you are probably damaging your arteries and building up a dangerously high blood pressure.

Hostility suppressed for years like a boiling volcano which never erupts is the fundamental cause of the malignant high blood pressure for which no physical cause has ever been found. Drs. Franz Alexander and Leon J. Saul of the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago told members of the American Psychiatric association here.

The cases of two men and two women who all had this same consciously suppressed hostility and rage were cited to show how this could cause high blood pressure.

Four Sample Patients.
The hostility toward the boss, which all four patients felt, was not due to the boss himself but in every case to rage at having been forced by a dominating mother to lead dutiful, conventional lives which they hated. For these are not the red-faced, choleric, tempery persons whom you suspect at first glance of having high blood pressure. The four patients and others like them are gentle, generous to subordinates, conscientious, model citizens.

Measurements taken at psychoanalytic sessions showed that the blood pressure rose when the patient was found by psychiatric analysis to be at a pitch of rebellion and dropped to normal when the patient had a temporary spell of inner calm.

In this the psychiatrists see hope of preventing dangerously high blood pressure by giving psychiatric treatment early while the rises are fluctuating and not very great. In time these fluctuations, they believe, damage the arteries, narrowing the bore so that the heart must work at constantly greater pressure to drive the blood through.

Siam Has Three Kinds Of Mass Bird Migration

WASHINGTON.—Birds of Siam have three kinds of mass migration, instead of the one kind that is known to temperate zones. Besides the usual north-and-south seasonal movement in which many Siamese species take part, there are also a water migration and a food migration, reports H. G. Deignan of the Smithsonian institution.

The water migration consists in the movement of vast numbers of water birds toward higher land areas with the coming of the rainy season and its attendant higher water levels in swamps and shallow lakes.

The food migration may be simply the result of scouting activities, in which certain individual birds discover places where mangoes, wild figs, and other fruits are ripe, and are then followed by the millions of members of the main flocks. Food migrations are indulged in only by birds of the pigeon and parrot families.

Another Lost Continent Found in North Mexico

NEW YORK.—Another "lost continent," this time in northern Mexico, has been reported to the Geological Society of America. Two geologists, Dr. Lewis B. Kellum and Dr. Ralph Inlay, both of the University of Michigan, are the discoverers. Indications of a "lost ocean," that separated North and South America 100,000,000 years ago have also been found.

The "lost continent," according to geologists, had a shape like a bear's paw, reaching southwestward from Texas into an ocean occupying what is now central Mexico. Crumpled and folded rocks, laid down in a sea during Permian time, gave the first clues to this ancient land.

Other reports, in recent years, tell of "giant bones" in this area—perhaps the bones of dinosaurs; of rocks containing "the bones of little chickens," and other strange occurrences which will furnish more clues to the geologists.

Efficient Transformer

WASHINGTON.—A new type of transformer, representing the first basic change in this important piece of electrical equipment since its invention more than 50 years ago, which is cheaper, smaller and more efficient than existing types, was described before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers here. Its core is wound through the coils instead of the coils around the core.

Ancient Wood Borers

WASHINGTON.—Trees 200,000,000 years ago were troubled in much the same fashion with wood-boring insects as are trees today. Traces of such insects have been found in the logs of the Petrified Forest of Arizona by M. V. Walker, national park service naturalist.

Blue Denim Stylish for Sportswear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S big news! It's all about denim, just plain ordinary, sturdy blue denim. Believe it or not, after all these years that blue denim has been associated in our minds as a mundane material devoted for the most part to the making of men's workaday overalls, we are now to the astonishing realization that this sturdy fabric has, in this summer season, gone style-high for women's wear. Just how Dame Fashion could have been so blind these decades past as to fail to recognize the style possibilities of denim as a medium for ladies' apparel will forever remain a mystery.

However, the fact remains denim has unmistakably come into its own in the feminine realm, not only for the making of play clothes, but designers are turning out the smartest-ever suits meticulously tailored of this never-wear-out attractive weave. In consequence of which we now see clever little classic jacket-and-skirt tailors of blue denim worn by women who register among the best dressed. These suits are stunning worn with a white pique blouse or a dainty, frilly white lingerie type, with accessories in white. Equally attractive are these suits with accents of bright color such as a Roman striped blouse with striped sandals and hand-bag to match. Scarlet or bright yellow buttons, belt and gloves are another way of doing it. The tailored linen blouse in vivid color also goes well with an outfit that is made of denim.

A two-piece dress (shirt and skirt) of denim, as illustrated to the left in the group, will not only give untold service but it stands for style personified in the sports clothes realm. Every line and detail of this outfit reflects exquisite standards of tailoring plus perfection of fit and finishing touches.

Ship ahoy! See the lovely recruit for the sailor's life centered in the picture. All tagged out is this mid-summer siren in sturdy denims that never lose an item of perfection no matter how many the big waves that wash over them—Old Demon Shrinkage doesn't have a chance. And what a wealth of style these sturdy denim togs do pack!

Even if the girl pictured to the right took an unexpected dive into the sea she need not be concerned about her outfit, for neither salt spray nor suds will make the sturdy fabric shrink. Note the nautical symbols, the pipings, braidings, all smart details of this grand garment that promises to remain true "for better or worse" wear.

By way of offering a few extra suggestions for the styling of denim we don't mind telling you that a bolero dress of denim will prove a positive treasure in your outing or vacation wardrobe. You vary the blouse to suit the occasion and it's "on again, off again" to suit the changing temperature, so far as the cunning bolero is concerned.

The idea of denim for children's play suits, dresses and other apparel should prove most inspirational to mothers.

CROCHET COLLARS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A spic-and-span collar to give new life to your favorite dress is always a welcome addition in a collection of pretty accessories. If hand-crocheted so much the better for a bit of handiwork always adds an exclusive touch to a costume. The collar pictured at the top is crocheted of lightweight mercerized cotton and embroidered in contrast color. The other collar is also hand crocheted of light mercerized cotton. It is trimmed with a border of contrasting color to match the drawing of twisted cotton strands cleverly brought through open spaces in the crochet.

Pockets Go Down

Pockets on beach togs have been lowered and lowered until now they have reached the knee.

SUMMER FURS TAKE STYLE SPOTLIGHT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fur in summertime is just one of the charming incongruities that makes fashion an ever-abiding source of interest and enthusiasm. If you would keep pace with the mode you must acquire a white ermine bolero or a cape of pointed fox for this summer. When fall comes you will be wanting one of the new hip-length jackets in brown fur, advance models of which have already arrived. White marabou or ostrich neckpieces, boleros and capes are also proving of immediate interest.

Bed Capes Used as Evening Wraps Over Summer Frocks

Recently some very cunning breakfast-in-bed capes have been brought out that are crocheted with tiers of little ruffles from neck to hemline. They are too lovely to be secluded in the boudoir, at least that is evidently the thought of young and daring daughters of the household who conceived the idea of appropriating these delectable capes for wear as evening wraps over their summer frocks, and from all reports the idea is working out to perfection.

'Forest Green' New Color For Girl Scout Uniforms

Forest green is the shade chosen for the new costume to be adopted by the 450,000 Girl Scouts throughout America. The dresses are in one piece, made on princess lines with a flared skirt, and short, slightly puffed sleeves. They are belted at the waist and zipped up the front to a close, rolled collar.

Boleros Popular

Boleros become increasingly important for summer fashions. They are worn equally often with evening clothes and informal daytime dresses, and they are made of everything from velvet to organdie.

Fall Tweeds Stress Color
High style tweeds which will appear soon for the fall market have wine, purple, green, pink blended together in stripe or in tile patterns. Blues are especially stressed.

PROGRESS

"I've found out that I'm the fifth girl you've been in love with."
"True; I've experienced a constant improvement in taste."

DING, DONG

"She's undeniably a belle, but she talks too much."
"A bell with a busy clapper, eh?"

NO PROTECTION

First Inmate—Call us guys law-breakers. How about the fellows who built this jail?
The Other One—Well, how about 'em?

First Inmate—Take a look around. Notice any fire escapes handy?

EACH IN ITS TURN

Mr. Paymore—When will you be through asking for new dresses?
Mrs. Paymore—I'll be through asking for new dresses when I begin to ask for new hats!

ON HOME SCORE-BOARD

Baseball Fan (growling)—This dinner is stone cold.
Wife (firmly)—I time dinner for nine innings. I can't figure on these fifteen-inning games.

FIFTY-FIFTY

Miss Nosey—So you've met the charming Miss Newcomer? Is she pretty?

Mr. Hardfax—Just so-so. About half way between what she thinks she is and what her rivals say she is.

"Beanborough seems to be greatly bothered with indigestion."
"I should say so! He refused to attend a moving picture show the other night because one of the scenes had a banquet in it."

Big Asia May Be Too Small For Stubborn Russia, Japan

by Edward W. Pickard

Foreign

Joseph Stalin once said Russia wanted "not one inch" of foreign soil. Last week Japan decided Dictator Stalin had either changed his mind or was at last throwing open support to beleaguered China. But best explanation of all was that big Asia is still not big enough to hold two stubborn powers.

Since 1931, when Japan marched into Manchuria, American newspaper readers have heard periodically that Tokyo and Moscow were "on the brink of war." Only Russia's autonomous Siberian army kept land-hungry Japan from moving into Soviet territory. But even that was not enough to prevent periodic got his Broadway ticker tape show, city hall ceremonies and luncheons after competing Manhattan and Brooklyn committees ironed out their disputes. Ahead for Douglas Corrigan was all the excitement he could stand in any American city he will agree to visit.

Politics

Long before Tennessee Valley Authority was a household term, Tennessee's Senator George L. Berry bought a large block of land in his home state. When TVA's expansion required the land, Senator Berry tried to sell out for $5,000,000, finally heard a court decide the property was worthless. The stunt placed him in Franklin Roosevelt's disfavor.

Last week George Berry fell in his own state's disfavor. From Memphis the powerful Crump political machine swept over Tennessee, nominated one Thomas Stewart for senator in the Democratic primaries. Also defeated was Gov. Gordon Browning by a political amateur, Prentice Cooper. Republicans, still hopeless in the South, held no primary.

Franklin Roosevelt had kept his hands out of the Tennessee family squabble. But as America went to the polls last week in other states, first primary returns to reach New Deal headquarters showed the score tied 2-2, the alleged "purge" having failed to jell.

● In Virginia, Sen. Harry Flood Byrd's machine defeated two "100 per cent New Deal" congressional aspirants, William E. Dodd Jr., and R. Bruce Shafer. Winners, who will probably be elected next November, were Rep. Howard W. Smith and ex-Rep. Colgate W. Darden, who beat both Shafer and the incumbent Norman R. Hamilton.

● In Missouri, Sen. Bennett Champ Clark was renominated after helping scuttle the Roosevelt judiciary and reorganization bills. Most important result, though, was Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's successful challenge of the Pendergast machine's supremacy. Stark's candidate for the state Supreme court, Judge James M. Douglas, easily floored the Pendergast nominee.

● In Kansas, New Dealer George McGill won renomination to the senate. But chief interest centered in Former Gov. Clyde M. Reed's successful G. O. P. senatorial fight against Radio Evangelist Gerald B. Winrod.

● In West Virginia, New Dealers Jennings Randolph, John Kee and Joe Smith won congressional renomination hands down.

Crime

When youthful Thomas E. Dewey became New York's district attorney, Manhattan expected fireworks. Many a bombshell has fallen in pre-trial accusations against Tammany's James J. Hines, one-time New Deal patronage distributor and alleged political fixer for the late Dutch Schultz's policy ring. Last week came two more bombshells.

First was an agreement that J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, disbarred attorney and alleged mouthpiece for the Schultz gang, would turn state's evidence and testify against Hines.

Second was a bill of particulars in which Tom Dewey's predecessor, William C. Dodge, felt once more the lash of New York's ambitious crime buster. Not waiting until August 15 for the opening of Hines' trial, Dewey presented his particulars last week before famed Justice Ferdinand Pecora. One particular: That ex-District Attorney

WILLIAM C. DODGE
For the moment, unimpaired.

Dodge was among public officials "influenced, intimidated or bribed" by Jimmy Hines.

Tom Dewey's mistake apparently lay in insufficient particulars. Because the bill admitted there were other alleged intimidation victims "not at present known," because Dodge and two New York magistrates were not specifically charged with a crime, Justice Pecora next day directed the district attorney to show cause why it should not be barred.

Unimpaired for the moment, William Dodge thundered: "This outrageous and malicious assault upon my character is unjustified!"

Miscellany

Dead two hours after smothering under blankets in his parents' car, three-month-old Robert Didier of Chicago responded to adrenalin injected by a surgeon at Wheeling hospital. Next day Robert was home, chortling happily in his crib.

● Meeting at San Francisco last week, Women's Christian Temperance Unionists held daily "fruit juice hours" as a challenge for society to forsake its cocktail hours.

Business

Last week as Russia and Japan moved to war, American dollars and gold moved over the Atlantic. When nervous European capital scurried for cover, gold soared from $34.77 to $34.94 an ounce, a new 16-month high. In two days, continental hoarders absorbed $26,715,000 in yellow metal.

Sports

Several months ago fabulous Byron (Whizzer) White turned down a $15,000 offer to play professional football with the Pittsburgh Pirates next autumn. Reason: Whizzer's combined scholastic-athletic accomplishments at the University of Colorado had won him a Rhodes scholarship. He would accept it immediately.

But last week after careful deliberation Whizzer White found a way to have his cake and eat it. Rehearsing for a radio program at Denver, he took time off to announce acceptance of the Pirate contract and postponement of the Rhodes scholarship until next January.

Elated, Manager Art Rooney forecast a National league championship for his Pirates. From Washington, where the Redskins had just signed Sammy Baugh to a three-year contract at the biggest salary in professional football's history, Owner George Marshall wired Rooney that it might be wise to hire the Pitt stadium for the Pirate-Redskin game October 2.

People

Back to her Parisian home last week via the Normandie went petite Simone Simon, her one-year contract with a Hollywood producer at an end. While ship's photograph ers snapped, Simone Simon pointedly announced she may never come back to the United States.

SIMONE SIMON
She may never come back.

One reason was that United States cinema audiences have not been enthusiastic, but a more important reason was her clash with the internal revenue bureau. To her suite on the Normandie went a tax collector to be certain Simone Simon had paid $4,000 due on last year's earnings. Kneeling on her bed the homing actress crooned: "I have paid my tax and I wouldn't get you in trouble for the world."

Almost unnoticed on the same boat was blonde Ariane Borg, also bound for France with the story that an American producer had spent $70,000 "grooming" her for pictures that were never made. Having learned to speak English, ride, fence, walk and dance, twenty-two-year-old Miss Borg wondered what she would do with her skill.

● Twelve years ago many a theater marquee blazed the name Al Kvale to jazz-mad America. He was their idol, the scholarly boy saxophonist who won thousands of fans by playing "Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses." Last week a charity ward at Chicago's Cook county hospital opened its doors to Al Kvale, broke, suffering from convulsions. To the rescue came his two noted brothers, Mayo clinic's Dr. Walter Kvale and Minnesota's Congressman Paul Kvale.

● One-time cinema actress Pearl White thrilled an earlier generation by jumping from trains, changing airplanes in midair, bouncing from madly running horses. Her most noted serial: "The Perils of Pauline." Last week at American hospital in Paris, Pearl White, 49, died.

● At Richmond, Va., tobacco heir J. Louis Reynolds won court custody of his year-old son from Helen Fortescue Reynolds, sister of Thalia Fortescue Massie, who once figured in a Hawaiian murder case.

Well Known Food Authority Describes Their Place in the Diet

TO ME, there is no more inspiring sight in the world than a field of nodding golden grain. It not only pleases the eye with its grace and profound beauty, but it attests to Nature's bounty. For down through the ages, grains have sustained and comforted man.

In every quarter of the globe, foods made from grain constitute the largest single item in the food supply. This is as it should be, for no other foodstuff affords such a rich store of fuel value at such little cost. It has been estimated that during one day's labor, an American farmer, growing wheat by up-to-date American methods, can produce enough protein and calories to sustain a man for a year.

A Source of Power and Pep

Every nation depends upon some form of cereal to furnish motive power for the body machinery — to provide necessary energy to keep body and brain functioning efficiently. In the Western world, wheat is supreme. But in Oriental countries, rice takes the lead and it is the chief article of food for half of the world's people. Rye, oats, barley, maize and buckwheat are likewise important crops.

Energy Values Compared

All uncoked cereal foods show great similarity in their chemical composition and therefore have very nearly the same energy value—that is about 1,650 calories per pound. The weight of a 100-calorie portion is about an ounce. But there is a wide variation in bulk, depending upon the degree to which the cereal has been refined.

For example, three tablespoons of patent wheat flour weigh one ounce; one and one-fourth cups of a puffed wheat cereal likewise weigh one ounce. After cooking, there is a big variation in weight, as well as measure, owing to the varying amounts of water absorbed. Thus a cup of cooked oatmeal mush supplies the same number of calories as three tablespoons of a pebbly dry cereal with a nut-like taste.

From 8 to 12 per cent of the calories in cereal foods are obtained from protein and two noted invesigators have estimated that grain products contribute 38 per cent of the total calories and 37 per cent of the protein in the typical American dietary.

Laboratory experiments indicate that the proteins of wheat, oats, maize, rye and barley are about equally efficient in promoting and supporting growth. None of them compares with an equivalent weight of the complete proteins of milk, eggs or meat, but when combined with small amounts of milk, the cereal proteins become highly efficient.

Iron and Copper

The mineral elements of grains are concentrated largely in the outer layers and in the germ. For this reason, there is considerable difference in the yield of minerals from whole grain and highly refined cereal foods.

The mineral content of bran is from 10 to 20 times greater than that of patent flour, and whole wheat contains from three to five times as much iron, calcium and phosphorus. Bran, oatmeal and whole grain cereals are a good source of copper as well as iron.

Rich in Vitamin B

The different cereal grains are quite similar in their vitamin values, but as the vitamins are very unevenly distributed throughout the kernel, there is a wide variation in vitamin content between the whole grain and refined cereal foods.

All seeds, including whole grains, are relatively poor in vitamin A. They are entirely lacking in vitamins C and D and contain only small amounts of vitamin G.

Both the germ and bran, however, are excellent sources of vitamin B—which promotes appetite, aids digestion and helps to prevent a nervous disorder. The importance of the germ as a food has been more fully appreciated since it was discovered that it is at least five times as rich in vitamin B as the whole grain or bran. There are several cereals on the market containing added wheat germ and this precious substance may also be obtained in concentrated form.

Laxative Value of Cereals

The whole grain cereals contain an abundance of bulk or cellulose and are therefore a valuable aid in promoting normal elimination. Individuals differ in their requirement for foods having a laxative effect, and in some cases one must be guided by personal experience. But inasmuch as the whole grain products furnish the body with larger amounts of minerals and vitamins B and G, a good general rule is to consume at least half of one's bread and other cereal foods in the whole grain form.

Digestibility of Grains

The whole grain products are less completely digested than those which are more highly re-finer, but as they contain larger amounts of protein, it is estimated that the amount of protein digested and absorbed from an equal weight of entire wheat or patent flours is practically the same. Thus when the two types of flours are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as substantially equivalent and interchangeable.

Many Forms of Cereal Foods

From infancy to old age, the cereal foods should, and usually do constitute the mainstay of the diet. Fortunately, there is such a wide variety from which to choose that there is little likelihood of monotony. Furthermore, because of their bland flavor, one does not readily tire of cereal foods.

In addition to the wide variety of breads, rolls, muffins, biscuits and griddle cakes that can be made from refined and whole grain flours, there are an astonishing number of cooked and uncooked cereals from which to choose. When served with milk, bread or cereals make an ideal and economical food combination.

Macaroni for a Main Dish

Besides serving as the main feature at breakfast and for the child's supper, cereal foods are useful as the chief attraction at dinner or supper when served in the form of macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles. They are a fine source of energy and also furnish about 12 per cent protein. When combined with cheese, which adds protein, minerals and vitamins, they constitute a balanced main dish.

Cereal products of all kinds deserve a ranking place among FOODS THAT KEEP US FIT.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Friday, the Twelfth day of August, 1938, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., at the front door of the County Court House in the City of San Jose, County of Santa Clara, State of California, A. ANDREUCETTI, as trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States, the following described real property situate in the County of Santa Clara, State of California, to wit:

Lot Number Six (6) as designated and delineated upon the Map entitled "Map of Campbell's Southwestern Addition No. 2," which said Map is of record in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California, in Book "H" of Maps, at page 141, Records of said County.

Said sale will be made to satisfy the obligations secured by, and pursuant to power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust executed by Isabel Gartner, a single person, as Trustor, to A. Andreucetti, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of Julia Martin, dated September 14, 1932, and recorded September 14, 1932, in Volume 620 of Official Records, page 478 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California.

Notice of the breach of said obligations and the election to sell said real property was recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California, on the 29th day of March, 1938, in Volume 865, Official Records, page 446 in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Santa Clara, State of California.

This notice is given in compliance with a written application heretofore made on the trustee by said owner and holder of said Deed of Trust and the note secured thereby.

The breach of said obligations consists of the failure to pay principal and interest as provided in said note secured by said Deed of Trust and said breach has continued to and including the date of this notice.

Dated: July 14th, 1938.
A. ANDREUCETTI,
Trustee.
JOHN H. MACHADO,
Attorney for Trustee.

Effect of Sun on Buildings
When the sun shines on one side of a building and the other side is cool, the warm side will naturally expand and cause the top to lean away from the sun. A warm wind may have the same effect. The Washington monument in Washington, D. C., sometimes leans as much as an inch off the vertical as the result of changes in temperature.

Cook Book Prescribes Cures
The 1925 edition of The White House Cook Book, written by a former steward of the presidential mansion, contains many unusual "Health Suggestions," says a writer in Collier's Weekly. Earache, it states, is cured by tobacco smoke, bleeding wounds are stopped by cobwebs and brown sugar, asthma is relieved by muskrat fur on the chest and codliver oil is delicious when taken with rust-laden water.

Oldest "Musical Meeting"
The Three Choirs festival is the oldest "musical meeting" in England. It takes place each year in rotation in the cathedral cities of Hereford, Gloucester and Worcester. The first was held as long ago as 1715. Nowhere else in the world may the great oratorios be heard in a cathedral with so large a choir and orchestra.

More Deputies Impossible, Says C. C. Spalding

Replying to published assertions of a candidate for coroner that, if elected he would appoint a deputy coroner in each town of the county, Coroner Charles C. Spalding today stated that he had on several occasions during the past four years, discussed the matter with the district attorney's office with that very same end in view, and had been advised that such a procedure would be contrary to the law as it applied to this county.

"I have long recognized the need of more deputies to cover the county more adequately," Spalding said, "but had to abandon the idea, owing to this strange restriction in the code. The necessity for a larger coroner's staff in this county—one of the five largest in the state—is freely acknowledged by all who understand the ever-growing functions of the coroner's office. It cannot be classed as a campaign issue, since the law itself precludes any attempt to better the present situation. I have been and am at present, employing three deputies, this being the maximum number specified by law."

Spalding pointed out that since the district attorney's office advises the board of supervisors on the legality of appointing deputies to county departments, requests for such appointments to the coroner's office must, in the existing circumstances, be denied.

"Re-elect Spalding for Coroner" clubs will begin in both San Jose and Palo Alto this week under the direction of Miss Lenora Williams. The clubs will be made up of women workers who will canvass the field for the incumbent in their respective districts.

Real Change In Government Is Needed, Olson

In presenting himself as a Democratic candidate for the governorship, Culbert L. Olson asserts a real change must be made in the character of our government. He asks the people for a mandate to make that change; a mandate to apply business methods, elemental honesty and common decency to the conduct of our state's affairs. "If democracy is to flourish," says Olson, "it must entail acceptance of majority rule and the renunciation of violence as means to power. I shall stand firmly for the preservation of our democracy and of representative, constitutional government against all attacks from whatever quarter."

SOCIAL WELFARE
"The needy unemployed, aged blind, crippled, insane and dependent people in California should no longer be forced to suffer because of the politically-minded administration of social welfare. I shall urge and support adequate aid for these people regardless of their party affiliations, race or creed and solely on the basis of their needs."

Olson believes in low-cost money. It should be the permanent concern of the state that farm loans be available at lowest possible interest rates, he says. The maintenance and extension of the activities of the federal land bank and other government loan agencies should be encouraged.

Culbert L. Olson may be heard over station KPO Friday, Aug. 12 at 6:45 p. m.
